BIBLE STORY

Luke 10:38-42

One day Jesus and His followers stopped at a house where His friend Martha and her sister Mary lived. Mary sat down to listen to Jesus teach.

Martha hurried around the house. There was much work to be done for their guests. Martha became upset. Why wasn't Mary helping her? Finally, Martha spoke to Jesus. She wanted Jesus to tell Mary to help. But Jesus told Martha that Mary had made the right choice.

Listening to Jesus was more important than doing housework.

Jesus wants us to listen to and learn from Him too!

FAMILY FUN

How did you learn how to talk? How did you learn how to make your bed? Who taught you how to ride a bike? The answer to most of these questions, and others like them, are your parents or other caregivers. You, in turn, are teaching your children and they will teach their children.

There are no lessons in life more important than those dealing with God and Jesus. You are your child's greatest teacher. Set aside a basket of laundry and read a Bible story picture book to your child. Shut down the computer screen and teach your child a favorite Bible verse. Passing on to your children your faith and belief in God will be the most important job you do today.

Bible Trivia. Make a list of Bible questions that are age-appropriate for various members of the family. For example: Who built an ark to be saved from a flood Divide into two teams. Members of teams can take turns asking trivia questions of the opposing team. When the game ends, talk about how important it is to learn from God's Word.
